

Writing Narrative and Informational Pieces About Squash

Jenna Mobley, Tending Our Common Ground

Overview:

This lesson will challenge students to describe squash in many different ways. Students will brainstorm qualities and uses of squash from the perspective of a chef, historian, doctor, scientist, artist, and animal. Students will be guided in dictating, drawing, and/or writing a narrative story (using characters, setting, and plot), an informational piece about squash (identifying a main idea and including details), and an opinion piece about squash (stating a point of view and reasons to support).

Time Needed: 35 minutes

Objectives:

- Students will write an opinion piece supporting a point of view with reasons and information.
- Students will write an informative piece to examine a topic and convey ideas and information clearly.
- Students will write a narrative piece to develop real or imagined experiences or events using effective technique, descriptive details, and clear event sequences.

Materials:

- Hats or props to represent different types of people (or use these Perspective Posters)
- Squash plants, harvested squash, or photos of squash plants
- Narrative Writing Mind Map Poster
- Informational Writing Mind Map Poster
- Index Cards
- Pencils
- Optional: squash or zucchini for taste test

Writing Narrative and Informational Pieces About Squash

Outline:

- Engage: Squash observation with five senses (an optional taste test could be included)
- Explore: Seeing squash attributes and uses from many perspectives
- Explain: Reviewing elements of narrative, informational, and persuasive texts
- Extend: Writing narrative, informational, and persuasive texts about squash

Lesson Plan:

- Engage (whole group / at the garden or in classroom) - 5 minutes
 - Observe a squash plant together either in the garden or in the classroom. Ask students to describe the squash plant. Encourage students to think creatively, remind them to use all of their senses.
 - Optional: squash taste test
- Explore (small groups / at seats) - 10 minutes
 - Teacher asks students to think creatively about how the qualities and uses of squash may be viewed in different ways by different people.
 - Teacher distributes various hats or perspective posters (one to each small group) to represent different types of people. Model one thought they may before asking students to develop their own thoughts in their small groups.

Examples may include:

- Chef:
 - What does this taste like?
 - What would happen if I cooked it?
 - What other foods would it taste good with?
- Historian:
 - How long has this plant been growing on the planet?
 - How long have people been eating it?
- Doctor:
 - What vitamins and minerals does this plant contain?
 - How does this plant help human bodies?
- Scientist:
 - How does this plant grow?
 - What plant family does it belong to?
- Artist:
 - What color would I use to paint it?
 - What shape are the different parts of the plant?

Writing Narrative and Informational Pieces About Squash

- Will this taste good?
- Is it poisonous? Will it hurt me to eat it?
- Plant:
 - Will this plant help me grow?
 - Will it drink all of my water?
 - Will I grow taller and get to the sunlight first?
- Explain (independent or in small groups / at seats) - 10 minutes
 - Introduce that there are many ways to write about squash (or any topic) if we just think creatively.
 - Narrative
 - Explain narrative writing using a mind map to identify the elements:
 - Setting
 - Characters
 - Plot (beginning, middle, end)
 - The teacher can model or the students in their small groups can dictate a short narrative story to each other to practice.
 - Informational
 - Explain informational writing using a mind map to identify the elements:
 - Main Idea
 - Details
 - The teacher can model or the students in their small groups can dictate short informational pieces to each other to practice.
 - Persuasive
 - Explain persuasive writing using a mind map to identify the elements:
 - Point of View
 - Reasons
 - The teacher can model or the students in their small groups can dictate short informational pieces to each other to practice.
- Extend (independent or in small groups / at seats) - 15 minutes
 - The teacher can assign each student to a different type of writing to be completed as a “quick write” on an index card.
 - When students have finished, selected students can read their pieces out loud for other students to guess what type of writing it was. These cards can also be edited, revised, and published to later be laminated and put into a center in which students can sort their class’s writing pieces by the type of writing or use whiteboard markers to highlight the different elements of each writing piece.
